A close-up photograph of white magnolia flowers on dark branches. The flowers are in various stages of bloom, with some fully open and others as buds. The petals are a clean, bright white, and the centers show hints of yellow. The dark, woody branches provide a stark contrast to the white blossoms. The background is a soft, out-of-focus light gray, making the flowers the central focus.

I'd wrongly granted access
To the purest parts of me
My heart, my soul and body
I just gave away for free

No one night-stands I'll grant you
But I gave myself too soon
I fell in love so quickly
Hearts and minds were not in tune

But now I know my value
With my partner, we will wait
For marriage, and to Jesus
Our whole lives we'll consecrate
